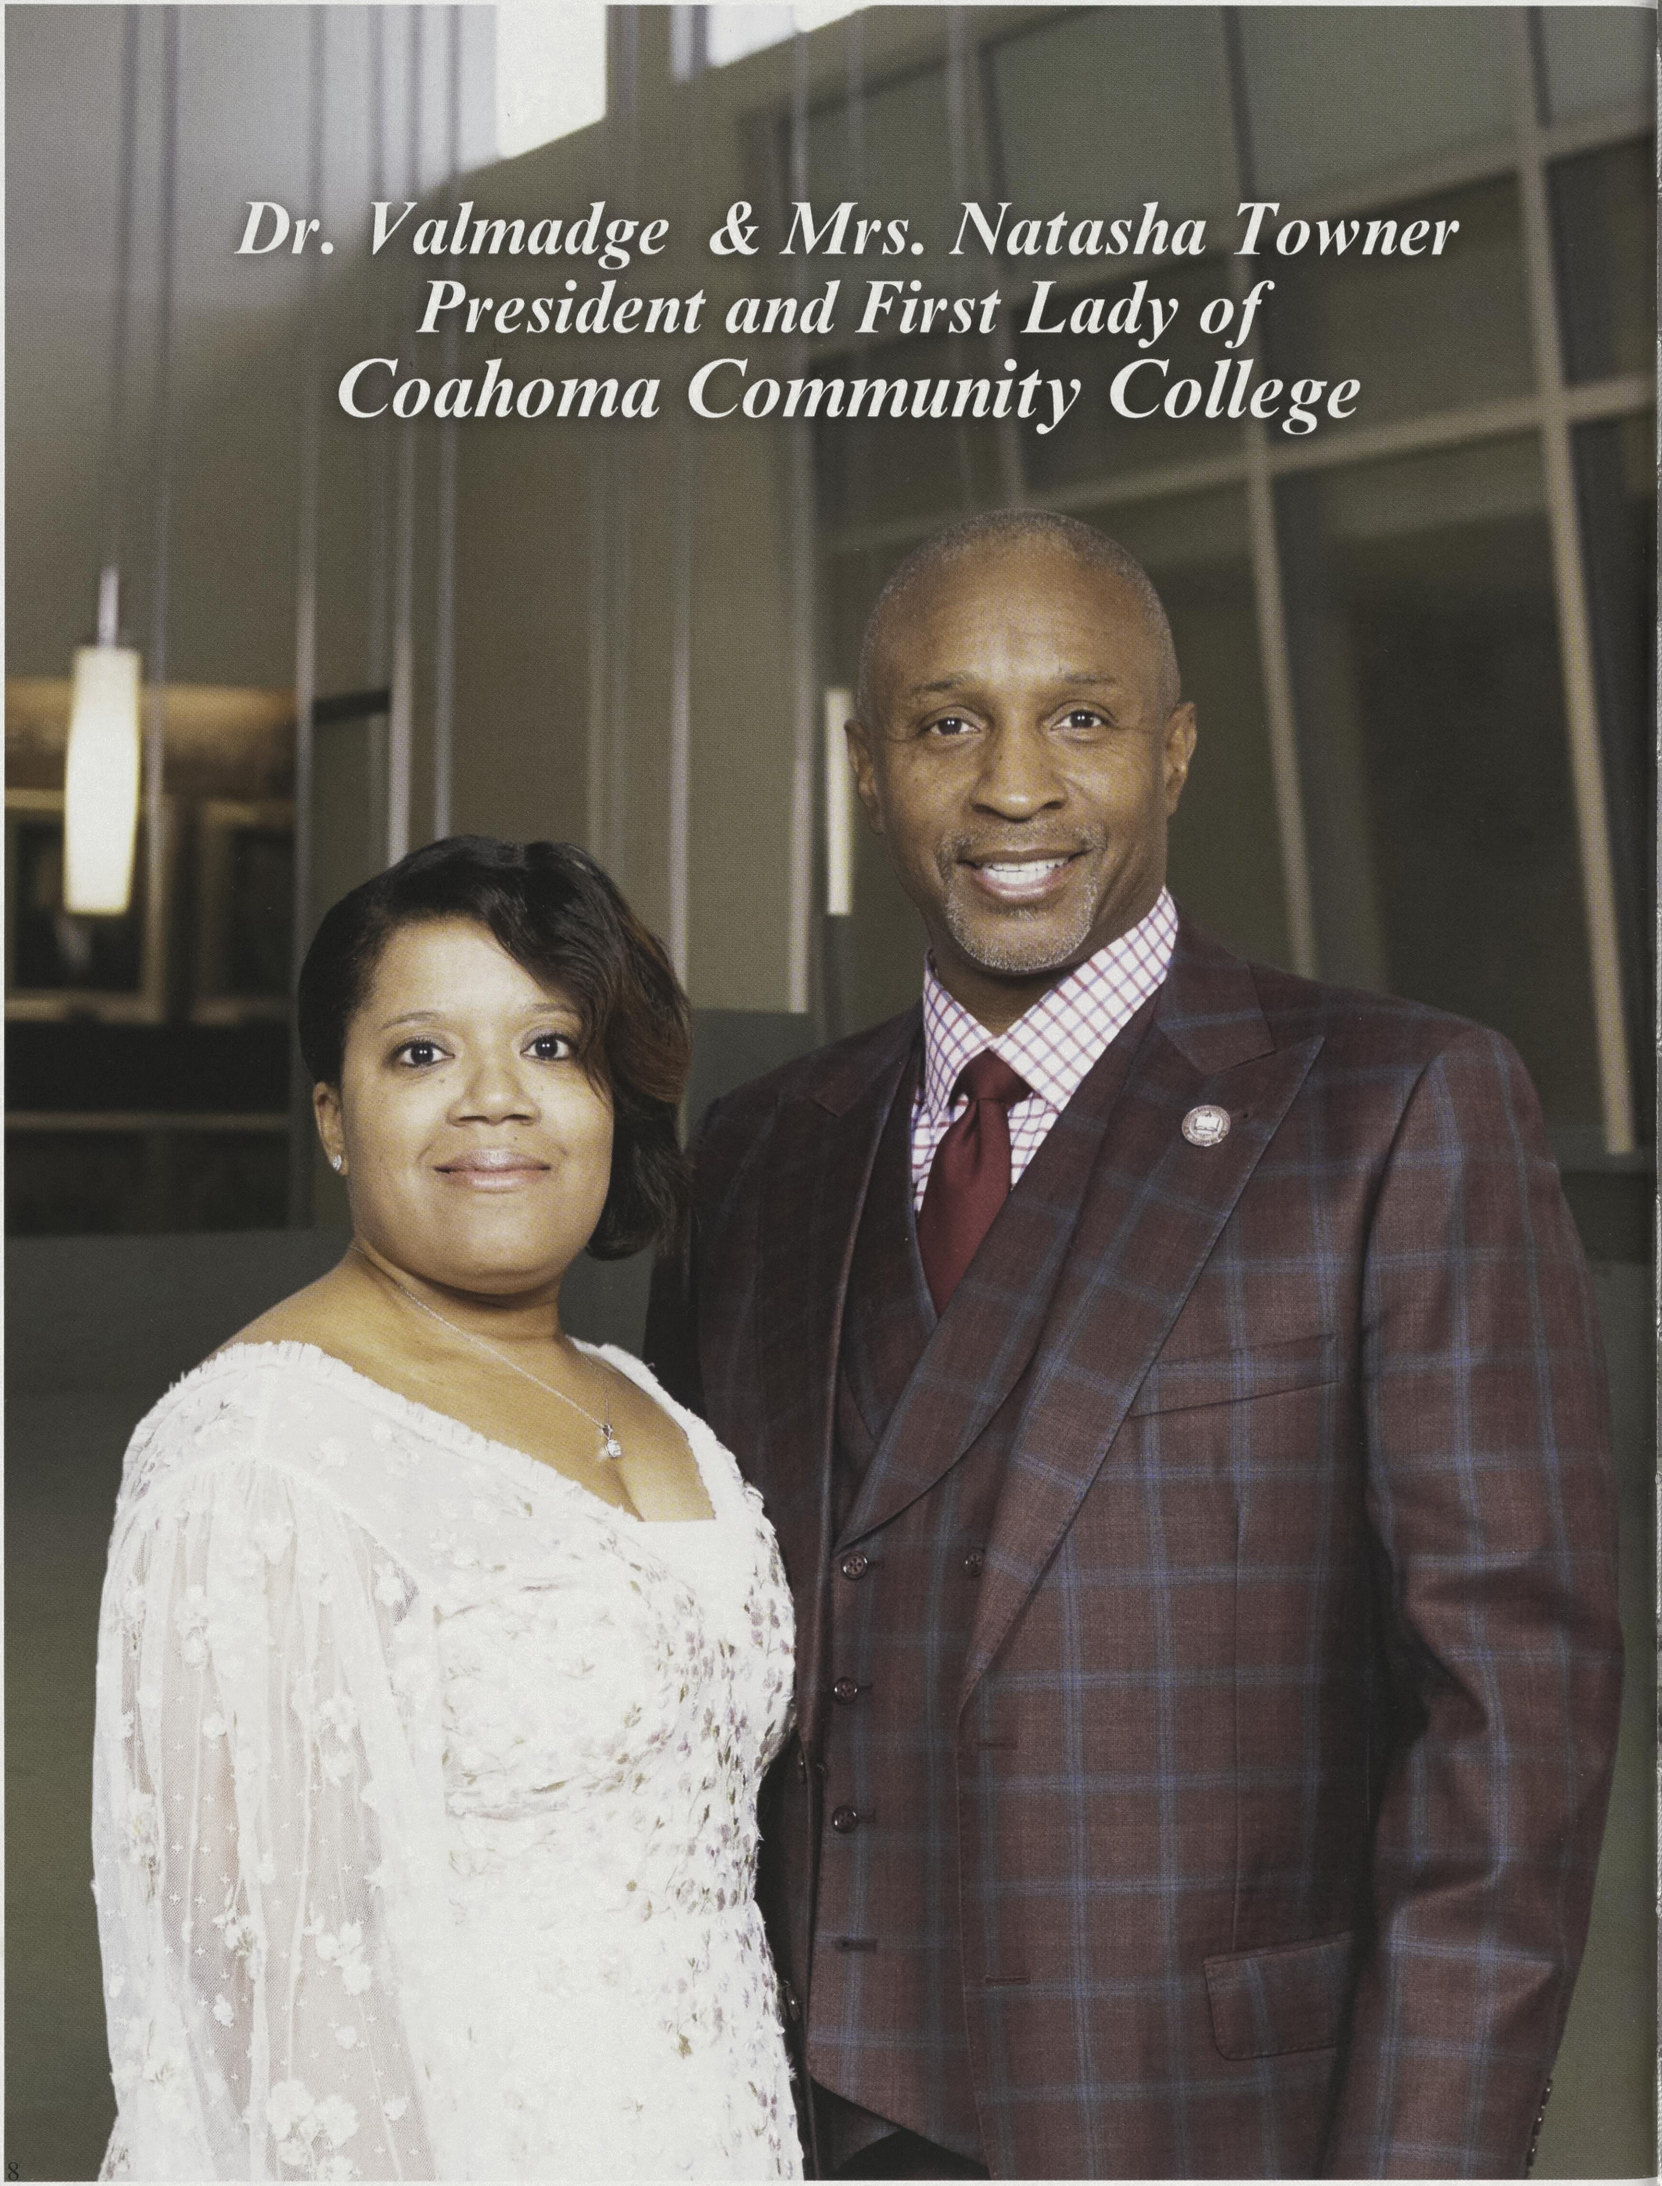
President and First Lady of Coahoma Community College



FROM THE DESK OF THE PRESIDENT

BIGGER

Around 1924, an effort was made by local members of the Mississippi State Legislature to open a high school that would educate black school children. At that time, black children could only attend school during non-harvesting seasons. Upon receiving legislative approval from the State of Mississippi, the first agricultural high school for black children was opened under the name of Coahoma Agricultural High School. Local farmers in Coahoma County successfully raised five thousand dollars to purchase land for the original placement of the new Agricultural High School. This high school was successfully operational for twenty five years and served students in Coahoma and surrounding counties by also boarding students during the week when necessary.

BETTER

Students who graduated from Coahoma Agricultural High School were authorized to become teachers in the K-12 school system. During the year of 1949, the principal of Coahoma Agricultural High School (Mr. B. F. McLaurin) persuaded the board of trustees to add another year to the high school's curriculum so that graduates of the high school could receive additional education and training. Mr. McLaurin accurately opined that offering another year of education and training to high school graduates would make them more effective teachers. This add-on of a grade was loosely referred to down through the years as the thirteenth grade. However, what Mr. McLaurin ingeniously engineered was the beginning of a new college name Coahoma Junior College because in year two of the curriculum expansion, a second year was added to college's curriculum. Hence, some seventy six years later, we are beneficiaries of a comprehensive community college named Coahoma Community College.

BOLDER

The late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., delivered a message in Atlanta, GA on August 16, 1967 with an interrogatory title of "Where Do We Go From Here?". Dr. King challenged his audience to recognize progress that had been made but he also exhorted listeners to embrace the work that was needed to overcome remaining challenges in the future. The call for reflection, renewal and resumption to mirror the ambition, courage, dedication and willingness to care for all mankind is still resonating with Coahoma Community College. We are deliberately focusing on remaining The College That Cares by immersing all of our efforts into the current principle of keeping Student Success as Our Top Priority.

We believe that the future is bright for Coahoma and we vow to help students and our constituents in our communities reach and exceed their academic goals. Though we are in age of digitalization, we are intentional relative to touching the lives of our students each day for years to come.

Coahoma Forever,

Valmadge T. Towner

DEDICATION

CHARLES F. REID

Decades of Service at CCC

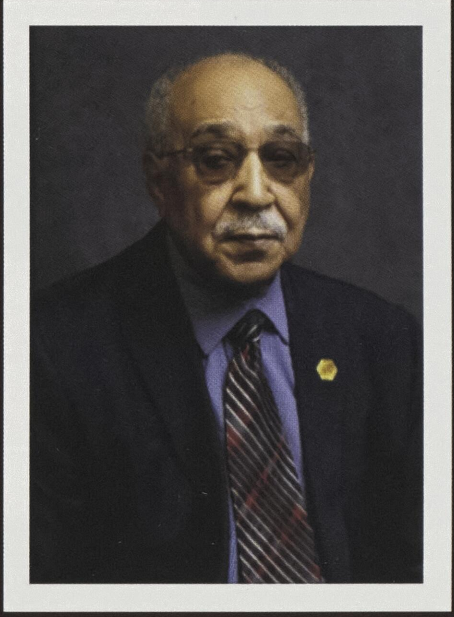
Mr. Charles F. Reid has been an integral part of CCC for nearly 60 years, beginning his journey in the school's Public Relations and Academic Development department. His passion and commitment quickly propelled him to serve as the institution's third academic dean, a role in which he helped shape academic strategies and foster a collaborative environment. Today, as the executive director of the school's foundation, Mr. Reid continues to build on a legacy of leadership and service that has defined CCC for generations.

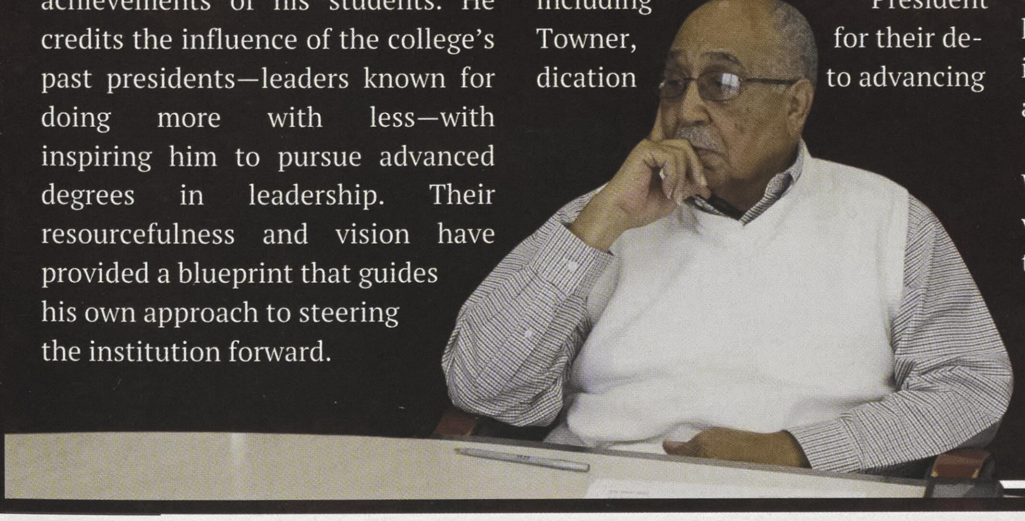
Throughout his career, Mr. Reid has forged lasting relationships with colleagues and celebrated the achievements of his students. He credits the influence of the college's past presidents—leaders known for doing more with less—with inspiring him to pursue advanced degrees in leadership. Their resourcefulness and vision have provided a blueprint that guides his own approach to steering the institution forward.

Mr. Reid's commitment to CCC is deeply personal, underscored by a remarkable four-generation family legacy. His grandfather helped start Aggie, his father dedicated years as the registrar until his passing in 1972, and now his daughter in law, Selina, is contributing to the college's success.

This enduring family involvement highlights not only a multi-generational commitment to the institution but also the profound impact that dedicated leadership can have on a community.

Looking ahead, Mr. Reid remains optimistic about the future of CCC. He praises current leaders, including President Towner, for their dedication to advancing the college's mission and their role in creating a more progressive, community-focused institution. Mr. Reid hopes to see CCC expand its programs and courses to better serve the community, as well as adopt more aggressive recruitment strategies to welcome new students.





For aspiring leaders, Mr. Reid offers clear advice: work hard, embrace every learning opportunity, and find a mentor who can guide you through the challenges of leadership. His lifelong dedication to CCC serves as a testament to the power of good leadership in transforming an institution and enriching the lives of all who are a part of its community.

We are honored to dedicate this 61st volume of the Coahoman Yearbook to Mr. Charles F. Reid.

CELEBRATING EXCELLENCE:

THE COAHOMA COMMUNITY COLLEGE PRACTICAL NURSING GRADUATES ACHIEVE 100% PN-NCLEX PASS RATE

Coahoma Community College is thrilled to announce that all 2023-2024 graduates of its Practical Nursing Program have achieved a 100% passing rate on the PN-NCLEX (National Council Licensure Examination for Practical Nurses). This extraordinary achievement reflects the commitment to excellence that defines Coahoma Community College and underscores the dedication of both students and faculty to the field of nursing.

Dr. Annie Hankins, the Practical Nursing Program Director, praised the graduates and their instructors for this significant milestone.

This remarkable accomplishment is a testament to our students' hard work, dedication, and exceptional skills," said Dr. Hankins.

"It also reflects the unwavering support and guidance provided by their outstanding instructors, Mrs. Teri Williams, Mrs. Katrina Harrell, and Ms. Jessica Robinson. Their commitment to excellence has genuinely paid off, and we couldn't be prouder."

The Dean of Health Science, Dr. Chequitia Dixon, echoed these sentiments, highlighting the collective effort that contributed to this success. "Our students have demonstrated remarkable perseverance and dedication throughout their studies.

The 100% passing rate is a clear indication of their readiness to enter the nursing profession and make a meaningful impact," she noted. "Congratulations to each of these students for this fantastic achievement. Their success highlights their exceptional individual sacrifices and sets a high standard for future practical nursing cohorts."

The exceptional performance of the Practical Nursing graduates not only demonstrates their individual commitment but also sets a new benchmark for the Practical Nursing Program at Coahoma Community College.

Mrs. Selina Reid

Director of Athletics

CELEBRATING EXCELLENCE:

REID NAMED COAHOMA ATHLETIC DIRECTOR, FIRST FEMALE TO HOLD POSITION

COAHOMA
CONGRATULATIONS
DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Selina Reid has been named Athletic Director, taking the helm of Coahoma Community College's (CCC) comprehensive athletic department.

The position, which Reid held for a brief interim period, manages all facets of Coahoma's athletic program, including scheduling, hiring coaches, promoting programs and events, ordering equipment, constructing budgets, and facilitating operations. She will also assist in fundraising events and supervise all CCC sports personnel.

Coahoma Athletics is actively working to deliver an unparalleled student-athlete experience fueled by the relentless pursuit of comprehensive excellence. The unit strives to be bold and innovative in its approach to recruiting and developing well-rounded graduates, championship-driven competitors, and world-changing leaders—all goals she takes seriously.

Reid sees her new title as the culmination of many years of hard work and dutiful service in her profession and to CCC. With admiration and appreciation, she looks forward to championing all things CCC on multiple levels.

She hopes to be a shining example to women of what hope looks like when combined with grit and tenacity. These passions act as fuel to the trails that Reid hopes to blaze during her tenure.

In an athleticdirectoru.com article, it was reported that a mere 7.5% of the 345 NCAA Division I programs have female representation in upper-level athletic administration, highlighting the present-day inequities in higher-ed athletics.

Given these statistics, Reid is undeterred, acting as a champion for equal rights, and sees herself as an intrepid dreamer of change and forward-thinking.

"Women are moving the needle and breaking the glass ceiling more frequently now. In reality, this is much bigger than me," Reid proudly added. "It is about being a beacon of light to give hope and inspiration to others who desire to pursue a career that may appear to be atypical for them to pursue."

Among her accomplishments, Reid became the first full-time head athletic trainer at CCC and volunteered her athletic training services at Coahoma Agricultural High School for ten years. In 2010, she became the first Assistant Athletic Director at Coahoma Community College

CELEBRATING EXCELLENCE:

COAHOMA COMMUNITY COLLEGE WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT HOSTS NATIONAL ADULT EDUCATION AND FAMILY LITERACY WEEK

Coahoma Community College (CCC) Workforce Development Center is proud to host a series of events in celebration of National Adult Education and Family Literacy (AEFL) Week from September 15 to September 21, 2024.

This national observance aims to raise awareness of the importance of adult education and family literacy and their pivotal roles in fostering equitable access to education, employment, and community engagement.

Throughout the week, CCC will offer a range of activities and guest speaker events designed to highlight the value of foundational education programs for U.S. adults with low literacy, numeracy, and digital skills. The week is also an opportunity for advocates and community leaders to emphasize the need for increased financial and societal support for adult education programs.
Tamara Washington-Travis, Director of Adult Education at Coahoma Community College, expressed her enthusiasm for the week's events, stating, "National Adult Education and Family Literacy Week is a time to not only reflect on the impact of education but to also spotlight the individuals who are working hard to improve their lives through learning. At Coahoma, we believe adult education opens doors to opportunity, and we are committed to helping individuals reach their fullest potential."

National AEFL Week originated in 2009 when the National Coalition for Literacy (NCL) worked with then-Congressman Jared Polis (D-CO), then-Senator Lamar Alexander (R-TN), and Senator Patty Murray (D-WA) to create a Congressionally-recognized designation that would draw attention to the importance of adult education and family literacy.

Since then, NCL has sponsored National AEFL Week in September each year on behalf of its members and the field as a whole. The organization has worked with Members of Congress to have the week recognized through resolutions in both the Senate and the House of Representatives.
CCC invites the entire community to join these informative and inspiring events. Together, we can raise awareness and promote the vital importance of adult education and literacy for all.

Humanities Teacher of the Year
Dr. Kelvin K. Towers

Coahoma Community College proudly named Dr. Kelvin K. Towers, Fine Arts Department Chair and Director of Choral Activities at Coahoma Community College, as the recipient of the Mississippi Humanities Teacher of the Year 2024 award. This prestigious recognition is a testament to Dr. Towers' outstanding contributions to humanities education and his dedication to fostering a rich cultural and educational environment.

With over two decades of exemplary service at Coahoma Community College, Dr. Towers has played a pivotal role in shaping the educational landscape. His commitment to the development of an Associate of Arts degree in Music Education has addressed the educational needs of candidates within the Delta tri-state region, encompassing Mississippi, Arkansas, and Tennessee.

Dr. Towers' illustrious career spans a wide range of musical genres, showcasing Concert, Gospel, Show choirs, Barbershop Quartet, and Men's and Women's vocal ensembles. He has served as a choral adjudicator at various levels, including the American Choral Directors Southern Region Conference, and as a clinician for district, all-city, and state convention choirs. Dr. Towers has been a driving force in the Mississippi Association of Community Colleges Choral Directors' Association, holding the position of President.

Currently leading the Two-Year College Division of the Mississippi chapter of the American Choral Directors' Association (MS-ACDA) as Repertoire & Resource Chair, and serving as the Executive Director of the Music Auxiliary for the Mississippi General Missionary Baptist State Convention, Dr. Towers has demonstrated his leadership in advancing music education.

A distinguished lecturer, Dr. Towers has presented at renowned conferences such as the University of Southern Mississippi Choral Conference, Delta State University International Blues Conference, Mississippi Valley State University B.B. King Symposium, and the Mississippi Delta Tennessee Williams Festival. His interests in lining-hymn singing, Gospel music pedagogy, and civic community service through the performing arts have added depth to his educational endeavors.

Dr. Towers' choirs have graced prestigious events, performing for the Mississippi American Choral Directors Association, Congressional Black Caucus Foundation in Washington, DC, and alongside national Stellar Awards winning gospel artists. His commitment to community service was acknowledged when he received the outstanding community service award for the 90th Southeastern Regional Conference of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated, in 2022. A proud native of Mound Bayou, Mississippi, Dr. Kelvin K. Towers holds a Doctor of Philosophy and a Master of Music in Choral Music Education from the University of Mississippi, along with a Bachelor of Music in Music Education from Mississippi Valley State University. He is also an esteemed member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Incorporated.

Congratulations to Dr. Kelvin K. Towers on this well-deserved honor. His passion, dedication, and contributions to the field of humanities education are truly commendable. About Mississippi Humanities Council: Founded in March 1972 with a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Mississippi Humanities Council has been a catalyst for grassroots public humanities programs. Originally named the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities, the organization later evolved into the Mississippi Humanities Council, playing a crucial role in promoting social change in the state.

During its founding amidst the turmoil of federally imposed integration, the MHC played a significant role in facilitating interracial meetings and funding grants to communities for discussions on desegregation and other critical issues. Dr. Cora Norman, the founding executive director, led the Council for 24 years until her retirement in 1996.

The Council's commitment to bringing the insights of humanities scholars to contemporary issues has been a cornerstone of its mission. It continues to serve as an impartial broker among differing points of view, providing a state-level legitimacy for discussions on important social matters.
